Our Knowledgeable Guide will walk through the fascinating history of the Kaunda era! It's amazing what he and his fellow party members achieved in this place.

Kabwata Cultural Village

In the colonial era this area was part of a larger township made up of dwelling huts. The Government of Zambia later acquired the land for the cultural village and designated it a "national monument" preserving it as a reminder of the past (British rule ended in 1964). It's a popular Lusaka attraction where visitors can find traditional Zambian artefacts to take home as souvenirs and gifts.

This is a stunning building with beautiful stained glass. We also have Mosques, Hindu Halls and a Synagogue

Lusaka Museum

Lusaka Museum, which started as the National Political Museum, is now a cultural history institution specializing in Ethnography, Art, Archaeology, and History. It officially opened its doors to the public in October 1996. The museum features two galleries:

- The lower gallery is a temporal exhibition of space in which contemporary art highlighting the way of life of Zambian people through paintings, sculptures and models is exhibited.
- The upper gallery tells the story of Zambia's history and development from its prehistoric past to modern times.

Zambian Traditional Restaurants (applicable only on a full day tour)

As Zambia comes of age and as Zambians become proud of their traditional food, there are many restaurants serving traditional food. Find a place for meat and fish lovers, prepared and served in true Zambian style. Enjoy Zambia's wide range of exotic vegetables prepared in as many ways as there are tribes in Zambia. Some restaurants more accurately prepare the dishes on charcoal stoves, and will offer barbequed fish, chicken, sausages, T-bone beef as this is very much an established Zambia tradition. In the higher end establishments the decor is Zambian and the waiting reflects Zambia's high level of respect for guests.

Local Markets

Soweto market is the biggest of the Zambian markets. The market gets its name from SOWETO, a South African township. The market is one place where you can interact with the local people and taste the local Zambian dishes!
